Cut through the black line

It is a usual weekday, and mama rabbit enters her children's room to wake them up in order to go to school.

However, Conny the rabbit doesn't seem to be feeling too well...

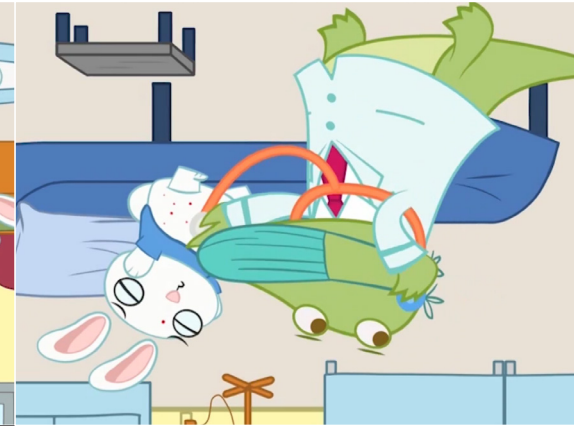

Mama rabbit checks if Conny has fever.

In addition to being ill, he has little red dots all over his face!

Upon examination, Croco Doc determines... That Conny has chickenpox!

Mama rabbit is very worried...

Croco Doc examines Conny with the stethoscope, trying to see what disease he might have...

In the waiting room, Conny and his mother meet Gafe the elephant.

He's a bit clueless... And mistakes a blanket for a handkerchief!

Or so she thought!
Apparently, Conny has passed the chickenpox to his siblings...

Finally, after a few days of having to take care of little Conny, mama rabbit can get a little rest...

Croco Doc gives Conny some advice... For instance, he shouldn't scratch the spots.
If he does, he might end up like a Gruyère cheese!

In addition, Croco Doc prescribes a syrup and a cream for the spots, and tells Conny that he should be careful not to infect anyone.

Hearing that, Crat gets very scared and jumps on the lamp to avoid catching it!
But most adults cannot get it...
They have already passed it!

A couple of days later, Croco Doc visits Conny at his home.
Indeed, the chickenpox has already been cured!
